ANNOUNCEMENT

In 1877 the United States Geographical and Geological Survey of the Rocky Mountain Region (J. W. Powell, Director) began the issue of a series of ethnologic reports in quarto form under the title Contributions to North American Ethnology. Several of the volumes were printed under special authority conferred by Congressional resolutions; and in March, 1881, the publication of volumes VI, VII, VIII, IX, and X of the series was authorized by the Congress through a concurrent resolution. This authorization was superseded by the law providing for the public printing and binding and the distribution of public documents, approved January 12, 1895. Up to this time there had been published eight volumes of Contributions (including one bound in two parts), numbered I–VII and IX.

After the United States Geographical and Geological Survey of the Rocky Mountain Region was merged in the United States Geological Survey, the Congress made provision for continuing the ethnologic researches and publications; and in conformity with this law the Bureau of Ethnology was founded. The Director of the new Bureau (J. W. Powell) began the publication of annual reports in royal octavo form with that for the fiscal year 1879–80, and at the same time continued the issue of the Contributions to North American Ethnology. Until 1895 the annual reports were specially authorized by the Congress, usually through concurrent resolutions; since 1895 they have been issued under authority of the public printing law. Of these reports nineteen have been published and others are in press; the Fourteenth, Seventeeth, Eighteenth, and Nineteenth are each in two parts or volumes.

In August, 1886, the Director of the Bureau was authorized by a joint resolution of the Congress to begin the publication of a series of bulletins, which were issued in octavo form; and in July, 1888, the continuation of the series was authorized by a concurrent resolution. When the public printing law was drafted this series was omitted, and the issue terminated in 1894. Up to this time there had been published twenty-four bulletins, each under a special title.

In the law making appropriation for the ethnologic work, approved June 4, 1897, the title was changed to "American Ethnology"; the designation of the Bureau was modified conformably, and the Sixteenth report (for 1894–95, issued in 1897) and those of later date bear the modified title. From 1895 to 1900 but a single series was issued by the Bureau of American Ethnology, viz, the annual reports.

In 1900 the Congress authorized the resumption of publication in bulletin form by a concurrent resolution, adopted by the House of Representatives on April 7 and by the Senate on April 27. This resolution is as follows:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That there be printed at the Government Printing Office eight thousand copies of any matter furnished by the Director of the Bureau of American Ethnology relating to researches and discoveries connected with the study of the American aborigines, the same to be issued as bulletins uniform with the annual reports, one thousand five hundred of which shall be for the use of the Senate, three thousand for the use of the House of Representatives, and three thousand five hundred for distribution by the Bureau.

Pursuant to this authority the manuscript of the late Dr J. H. Trumbull's Natick-English and English-Natick Dictionary was transmitted to the Public Printer on May 12, 1900, with the request that the same be printed and bound and issued as a bulletin uniform with the annual reports of the Bureau of American Ethnology. The composition was at once taken up; but by reason of the technical character of the matter and unforeseen difficulties in proof reading, the issue of this initial number of the new series has been unexpectedly delayed.

It is a pleasure to acknowledge the courtesy of the American Antiquarian Society and of its president, Honorable Stephen Salisbury, in intrusting Dr Trumbull's unique manuscripts to this Bureau; and it is especially gratifying to express appreciation of the scholarly interest and aid of Dr Edward Everett Hale, who not only effected the arrangement for publication but contributed an introduction to the work. While this introduction was written from the standpoint of the general literary student rather than the specialist in Indian languages and characteristics, it pays a just tribute to the memory of the eminent philologist whose latest, and perhaps greatest, work was that of compiling and comparing the accompanying vocabularies from the Eliot Bible. James Hammond Trumbull was born in Stonington, Connecticut, December 20, 1821; he was a student at Yale, and held important public offices in Hartford during the period 1847–1864. He was an original member of the American Philological Association in 1869, and its president in 1874 and 1875; a member of the American Oriental Society, of the American Ethnological Society, and of several other learned societies, including the National Academy of Sciences. In 1873 he was chosen lecturer on native languages of North America at Yale University, though failure of health soon compelled his resignation; and from Yale, Harvard, and Columbia he was the recipient of degrees in recognition of notable researches and publications. In addition to his linguistic knowledge he possessed great learning and skill as a bibliographer. During his later years he was a valued correspondent of the Bureau, and his wide knowledge of both aboriginal tongues and bibliographic methods, freely conveyed to the officers of the Bureau, proved of great service. He died in Hartford, Connecticut, August 5, 1897.

Dr Hale pays a merited tribute also to John Eliot, the pioneer student of aboriginal languages in the New England region, pointing out that Eliot was not merely a translator of the native tongues but an original investigator of their structure. Naturally the opinions concerning the aborigines and their languages based on the limited knowledge of the middle of the seventeenth century were much less definite than those resting on the numerous records extant at the beginning of the nineteenth century; yet it is noteworthy that the early view of Eliot, voiced by Dr Hale, as to the widespread grammatic correspondences among the native tongues, possesses a meaning well worth the interest of the pioneer student and his later interpreters, Trumbull and Hale. The place and date of John Eliot's birth are not recorded, but he was baptized in Widford, Hertfordshire, England, August 5, 1604. He matriculated at Cambridge in 1619, and took a degree in 1622; he subsequently took orders, and, accepting a call to Roxbury, Massachusetts, emigrated in 1631. He remained at Roxbury in pastoral work throughout the remainder of his life; he died May 21, 1690. As indicated by Dr Hale, his enduring reputation rests chiefly on his records of aboriginal languages; yet it would seem that he exercised a still more important influence on his own and later generations through his sympathetic efforts to educate the tribesmen of New England and to raise them toward the plane of self-respecting citizenship. In this work, too, he was a pioneer; and undoubtedly he did much to prepare the minds of statesmen and philanthropists for the humanitarian views of primitive men which characterize modern policies toward the Nation's wards. Thus it is particularly fitting that Eliot, the pioneer in sympathetic and systematic study of the aborigines, no less than Trumbull, the direct contributor, should receive from the Bureau of American Ethnology such honor as this publication may confer.

As has been noted by Dr Hale, the Trumbull manuscript and proof passed through the hands of Dr Albert S. Gatschet and received the benefit of his extended acquaintance with the native languages of the Algonquian stock. The manuscript was not, however, edited critically; it was, on the other hand, aimed to print the matter substantially as it left the author's hands, with only those minor changes in punctuation, alphabetic arrangement, cross references, etc., which the author would necessarily have made had he lived to revise the copy; and a list of abbreviations was prepared. Still, the task of proof revision proved arduous, and much credit is due Mr F. W. Hodge, who began, and Mr H. S. Wood, who completed, this work. Grateful acknowledgment is made to Mr Wilberforce Eames, of the New York Public Library, for aid in interpreting abbreviations.

INTRODUCTION

By Edward Everett Hale

Dr Trumbull's vocabularies constitute the most important contribution to the scientific study of Eliot's Indian Bible which has been made since that wonderful book was published.

To the preparation of these vocabularies James Hammond Trumbull gave most of his time throughout the closing years of his diligent and valuable life. The work was so nearly finished when he died that, as the reader will see, it is clearly best to print it as he left it, and to leave it to the careful students of the future for completion by such work as he has made comparatively easy. By her generous gift of the beautiful finished manuscript to the American Antiquarian Society, his widow, Mrs Sarah Robinson Trumbull, has made its immediate publication possible. The officers of the society at once consulted Major Powell, the Director of the Bureau of American Ethnology, as to the best plan for its publication. The Bureau placed the manuscript in the hands of Dr Albert S. Gatschet, of the ethnologic staff; and the book has had the great advantage of his extended acquaintance with Algonquian languages as it passed through the press.

It is hoped that the book will form the first volume in a series of vocabularies of the native languages. Such a series, under such supervision as the Bureau will give to the selection and editing of the works contained in it, will be of great value to students of language; but it will contain no book more valuable in itself or more interesting from its history than Dr Trumbull's Dictionary.

Even in circles of people who should be better informed, we frequently hear it said that the Bible of Eliot is now nothing but a literary curiosity, and hardly that. Such an expression is unjust to Eliot's good sense, and it is quite untrue. Reverend J. A. Gilfillan, whose work of education among the northern tribes is so remarkable, found that his intelligent Chippewa companions were greatly interested in the Bible of Eliot, and readily caught the analogies of the language with their own when the system of spelling and of vocalization was explained to them.

With great good sense, Eliot used the English letters with the sounds which Englishmen gave them. When the American Home Missionary Society first undertook its translations of the Bible, it adopted, after some question, the vowel pronunciation of the Latin nations. The wadtchu (mountain) of Eliot becomes in Mr. Sherman Hall's translation uijiuii, the one letter u being the only letter which is the same in both words; yet both mean to express the same sound. It seems now a great pity that the translators in our century did not use in any way the diligent work of Eliot.

In the spring of 1899 I placed before a Chippewa boy in the Hampton (Virginia) school thirty words of the Massachusetts Indian language. He recognized at once fifteen of them, giving to them their full meaning; and with a little study he made out almost all of the remainder. In the course of two and a half centuries the uses of words differ as much among Indians as among white men, but it would seem that they do not differ more.

Such careful study as Dr Trumbull and Duponceau and Pickering and Heckewelder have given to the Algonquian languages shows beyond a doubt that John Eliot was one of the great philologists of the world. His study of the remarkable grammatic construction of the Indian languages proves to be scientific and correct. The linguists of the continent of Europe took it for granted, almost, that Eliot's statements regarding the grammar of the Indian tribes could not be true. It seemed to them impossible that languages so perfect in their systems and so carefully precise in their adaptations of those systems could maintain their integrity among tribes of savages who had no system of writing. All study of these languages, however, through the century which has just passed, has proved that the elaborate system of grammar was correctly described by Eliot, and, to the surprise of European philologists, that it is fairly uniform through many variations of dialect and vocabulary.

It is much to be regretted that a careless habit of thought takes it for granted that a good Indian word of one locality is a good Indian word of another, and that names may be transferred from North to South or from South to North at the free will of an innkeeper or of a poet. Such transfers of words, which in the beginning amount almost to falsehood, cause more confusion and more as time goes by.

Mr Pilling's valuable bibliography of the Algonquian languages shows us that there are now existing fourteen complete copies of Eliot's Bible in the first and second editions. Besides the complete text we have the New Testament printed in a separate volume in 1661, and in the Eliot Primer or Catechism, which has been reprinted in the present generation, we have the Lord's Prayer and some texts from the Bible, as well as a translation of the Apostles' Creed into the Massachusetts language. The number of books printed as part of his movement for the translation of the Scriptures and the conversion of the Indians is nearly forty. For the use of all these books Dr Trumbull's dictionary will be of the very first value. Is it perhaps just possible that the publication of this book may awaken such attention to the subject that some of Eliot's lost manuscripts may still be discovered?

Of Eliot's place as a scholar and an educator Dr DeNormandie, who now fills his pulpit in Roxbury, speaks in the highest terms. It would seem that we owe to Eliot the establishment of the first proper Sunday school in America, and perhaps one may say in the English realm. On October 6, 1674, the record of his church says:

> This day we restored our primitive practice for the training of our youth. First our male youth, in fitting season, stay every Sabbath after the evening exercise in the public meeting house, where the elders will examine their remembrance that day of any fit poynt of catechise. Secondly, that our female youth should meet in one place (on Monday) where the elders may examine them on their remembrance of yesterday about catechise and what else may be convenient.

"The care of the lambs," says Eliot, "is one-third part of the charge over the works of God."

Dr DeNormandie ascribes to Eliot the general establishment of "grammar schools" among the institutions of Massachusetts. He says: "One day all the neighboring churches were gathered in Boston to 'consider how the miscarriages which were among us might be prevented.' Eliot exclaimed with great fervor, 'Lord, for our schools everywhere among us! That our schools may flourish! That every member of this assembly may go home and procure a good school to be encouraged in the town where he lives! That before we die we may be so happy as to see a good school encouraged in every plantation in the country!'" By "plantation" Eliot meant separate village.

Cotton Mather says: "God so pleased his endeavors that Roxbury could not live quietly without a free school in the town." Roxbury was the town of which Eliot was the minister. "And the issue of it has been one thing which has made me almost put the title of 'Schola Illustris' upon that little nursery; that is, that Roxbury has afforded more scholars, first for the college and then for the publick, than any town of its bigness, or if I mistake not, of twice its bigness, in all New-England."

John Eliot was quite willing to accept the responsibilities of making laws and even a constitution for his "praying Indians." As he found the Indian tribes, government among them seemed at best absolutely minimum; he was unable to perceive that they had any government. Eliot made for them a working constitution for a democracy, on principles which are so absolutely democratic that they frightened even the Puritan emigrants around him, the coadjutors of Cromwell and Sidney. Poor Eliot was even obliged to recall his words in a public recantation. The democratic constitution which he wrote for his people is well worth the study of any faithful student of government today. On much the same plan were his settlements founded where the colonies of "praying Indians," with the government of the people by the people and for the people, and with the oversight of a benevolent judge in Israel, were his coadjutors and pupils. It is, alas, impossible to tell what would have been the outcome of this remarkable experiment, for the outbreak of King Philip's war in the year 1675 broke it up before it was fairly tested.

Eliot's first religious service among the Indians was on October 28, 1646. When King Philip, in 1675, united the Indian tribes of New England in almost simultaneous attacks on the English settlements, the excitement in the seaboard towns turned against Eliot's "praying Indians," and the people suspected as on such an occasion seems natural—that these converts were in league with the enemy. So strong was the popular feeling in Boston that Eliot was compelled to remove his colony from Natick to Deer island, in Boston harbor, and there, as exiles from their own land, they spent the months before King Philip's power was broken. They then went back to Natick, where the people celebrated, on the 4th of July last, the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of that village. There seems to be no one left in that neighborhood of the descendants of this colony.

A late and insufficient authority says that Natick means Place of the Hills. The Dictionary of Dr Trumbull affords no support for this etymology, and it is probably mistaken. Charles river, as a small stream, passes through the village. Captain John Smith gave to it its name, which was the name of Prince Charles, afterward King Charles. The Indian name of this stream seems to have been Quinobeguin; this would seem to mean Long river, from the root quin, it is long (compare Quinnehtukqut, the Connecticut); or, quite as probably, it means the river which turns about, from quinuppe, around about or all about.

South of the Natick Indians the Narragansett tribe spoke a dialect not very different from theirs, and west of these the Mohegan tribe used another dialect of the same language. There is now no Narragansett Indian who remembers any words of the language of his forefathers; Mrs Mitchell, who considered herself a descendant of King Philip and who did remember some of the words of his tribe, died in the spring of 1899. The Mashpee Indians still exist as a native community, occupying the town of Mashpee on Cape Cod. They have taken on all the habits of civilization; among others, they preserve their own trout brooks for the benefit of amateur sportsmen, and rent them to such sportsmen for considerable revenue. They maintain free schools as other towns of Massachusetts do, but in these schools no word of the language of their race is spoken, nor do any of the Mashpee Indians have further knowledge of it than does any other New Englander. The Gay Head Indians, on Marthas Vineyard, a brave and spirited set of men, retained a knowledge of their own language later perhaps than did any other of the Indians of southern New England, but it has died out among them. In the eastern part of Maine, however, the Passamaquoddy and Micmac Indians, whose range extends into the British provinces, still use their dialects of the Algonquian stock. Vocabularies of the related dialect spoken by the Abnakis, prepared by the faithful Catholic minister, Sebastian Rasles, still exist; of these the most important was printed by the American Academy as edited by the distinguished scholar Mr John Pickering.

Adj. and adv. anantamwe, anantamœ, willing-ly, Judg. 5, 2.

This is the intens. or augment. form of the primary verb antam, he is mind-ed, has in mind (with an an. obj. anumaü), which is not, perhaps, found separately in Eliot, but is the base of all verbs of mental action and of emotion. Maillard (Micmac Gr. 91) distinguishes this class of verbs as "personnels mentaux: ces verbes designent les différentes modifications de l'esprit, de la pensée, ou de l'âme."

[Narr. nt-eántam or nt-unnántam, I think; nt-eatám-mowonck, my thought or opinion. Abn. ned-erérdam, je pense. anaquabit, as a prep., before, in the presence of (him), Ex. 8, 20; 9, 13; Luke 21, 36. This is a verb in the suppositive (its regular indicat. pres. would be anaquappu), and varies in number and person with its subject, which is the object of the preposition by which we must translate the verb:

nun-neepoh anaquab-ean (2d sing.), I stand before thee, Ex. 17, 6; —— anaquab-it (3d sing.), —— before him; —— anaquab-eóg (2d pl.), —— before you; —— anaquab-hettit (3d pl.), —— before them, Deut. 9, 2; neepau anaquabeh (1st sing.), he stands before me, Ps. 139, 5.

In some dialects this prepositive verb is further varied with the position or attitude of its subject—before him when sitting, when standing, when lying down, etc. (see Baraga, Otchipwe Gr., 469); but if such distinction was made in the Massachusetts language it escaped Eliot's observation.

anaquappu is formed of appu (he remains, he is) and onkoue (beyond, in advance of) or some nearly related word.

ánin, anun, v. i. (1) it exceeds, goes beyond, is more than. (2) it rots, corrupts. From ánue, more, beyond, with the formative of verbs of growth: it goes beyond, exceeds (the good or normal); with an. subj. aninnu, anunnœ, he rots ('stinketh', John 11, 39), pl. aninwog, 'they are corrupt', Ps. 14, 1; Is. 50, 2; wuskannem anit ut agwe puhquohkit, 'the seed is rotten under the clods', Joel 1, 17; suppos. inan. ne aneük, 'a corrupt thing', Mal. 1, 14; 'rottenness', Prov. 12, 4; suppos. an. noh anit, he who is rotten or is corrupt; corrupted or putrefied flesh or an. being (sometimes used by Eliot for aneük, after an inan. substantive, as Prov. 10, 7). Vbl. n. annœonk, decay, rottenness, Prov. 14, 30; annunœonk, rottenness (of flesh, or an. obj.), putrefaction, Lev. 22, 25; Job 17, 14; suppos. pass. (inan. subj.) anunnamuk, when it is rotted, rottenness, Hos. 5, 12.

The primary signification, it will be observed, is to exceed, to pass beyond; hence noh anit, he who exceeds or goes beyond (the natural, the common, or the normal) designates any an. being of supernatural, uncommon, or abnormal qualities or powers; and with the indef. prefix instead of the demonstrative, m'anit (somebody or something that exceeds), became the name of supernatural being or agency, which is usually translated 'God'.
[Del. alett, rotten, Zeisb.]

With inan. obj. annúmaü (q. v.), he gives (command) to, commands (it) to (him). In the verse last cited three forms of the primary verb occur in the suppositive: anúmmaont, when he gave (his decree) to; toh anont, 'his commandment', i. e. his commanding, wordgiving; ánœwodt, 'when he appoints', commands (it).

Eliot's use of the several forms and derivatives of this verb does not enable us to distinguish them accurately. The primary signification of the root is, perhaps, to send (cf. annœtam, ánnœnaü); to commission, to direct, to tell.

[Cf. Abn. ned-a'raü, j'ai coutume de lui dire; arŏs, flèche [i. e. a missile]. Del. allumsi, go along; alluns, arrow, bullet; allummahen, to throw; ptakaluns [round missile], bullet, Zeisb.]

fishermen, El.) This verb signifies to fish with hook and line. It is not used by Eliot except in the participial ómacheg, and the derived n. agent. (Cf. nəotamógquam, I go a fishing.) Its base is óm (aum), a fishhook (Matt. 17, 27), primarily a verb signifying 'he takes fish,' or simply 'he takes' (cf. amàunum, he takes, with his hand etc.), which in the suppos. has ámaik (ámmág, ómmâg), 'when he takes,' and pass. 'what is taken'; pl. ámágquog, ómmagquog. This suppos. or participial serves in composition as a noun generic for 'fish taken by the hook', and (in the singular) for a place of taking fish, 'fishing place'; and it was used by Eliot, in a wider sense, for all fish, as kehtahhan-ámaquog, sea-fishes, Num. 11, 22; mogk-ommâquog, great fishes, John 21, 11; how-amag-qut, (objective) to any fish, Deut. 4, 18. kēsuk by its form appears to be the suppositive or participial of a verb kēsu, or with inan. subj. kēsin (kussin), it warms or is warm. Though this verb is not formed separately in the indicative, it may be traced in the prefix kus-, kussa- (q. v.), in the passive form kussittau, he is heated, made warm (as n. heat of the sun), and in the verb-adj. an. kesœsu (kesœsinneat, to be warm, C.). ko, koh, may be regarded as the present imperfect or continuing present tense of an irregular and defective verb of existence. It signifies not merely he (or it) is, but connotes prior existence, he continues to be; k, in this as in derivate verbs, denoting continuance or progression. Past existence was expressed by mo (q. v.), which we may call the preterite absolute of the same verb, signifying it was and is not, and therefore not properly employed in speaking of that which continues to be. Eliot has in some instances combined ko and mo, and ko and pish, to express the past (aorist) and future tenses of the verb 'to be': noh koh mo, no koh, noh puont, 'who was, and is, and is to come', Rev. 4, 8; so ken nukoh [=noh koh] mó, ken nukoh, ken paúan [and ken nukoh pish], Rev. 11, 17; 16, 5; nennukoh [for nēn noh koh], I am, i. e. kutche, kœche [k'œche, k'wutche] signifies, primarily, it proceeds or makes progress from; hence, it begins, has its origin or source; but while nœche is used with reference to a beginning or starting point, present or past, kœche or kutche connotes progression or the going on from a beginning or origin in the past to the present or future, or the relation of a cause to its effect in the present or future. Eliot does not appear to have made this distinction in all cases; e. g. kitchu, he began (to curse,

m' (or, as written by Eliot, m followed by a short vowel) is an indeterminate and impersonal prefix which may be translated by 'some,' 'any,' or occasionally by 'a,' 'an,' or 'the.' Duponceau (notes to Eliot's Gr. xiv) mistook this prefix for 'a definite article', as Howse (p. 245) has shown. It is found with substantives signifying the body and its parts, with the names of a few objects which were regarded as specially belonging to the person, and with some concrete and material nouns, e. g. m'askeht, grass (from askehteau, it is green); m'ay, path, way (from äu, he goes); m'in, a fruit (from -in, formative of verbs of growing), etc. In all these it retains its primary signification as a negative or its secondary as a preteritive particle (see mo). It negates the personal relation or appropriation which the pronominal prefixes affirm, e. g. nut-tah (n'tah), my heart; kuttah (k'tah), thy heart; mŭtah (m'tah), heart, not mine or thine, but some or any heart. It has in no case a definite or determinate force, but always the opposite.

Negation appears to be the primary signification of this particle, or rather of its base, m' (q. v.). With the formative of the verb substantive (m-œ, mo) it came to have the force of an affirmation of past being (fuit) by denial of present, and thus supplied the preterit of the defective verb of existence; ko, it was and continues to be; mo, it was and is not; pish, it will be. (The limited or definite present, 'is now', was marked by the affix -œ for verbs of being, -ni or -i for verbs of an. or inan. action. For the former class, see El. Gr. 16.) Eliot sometimes combined mo with ko to form an aorist (koh mó, mônkó. See ko). For the force of m' as a prefix, indeterminate and impersonal, see m': ut mo ayeuwuttuonk, there was a battle, 2 Sam. 2, 17; mó wequai, there was light, Gen. 1, 3; ken mo wuttinneumin, thou wast a servant, Deut. 5, 17; neg mo neematog, these (who are dead) were my brothers, Judg. 8, 19; mo ayeuau, he was made, etc., 1 Cor. 15, 45. -mo or -mœ, the characteristic of active in-

Of all these forms the base is the name of fire which Williams writes sqútta, but which is not used separately as a substantive by Eliot. W.) as nearly equivalent to our characterization of "the devouring element," or fire as an enemy. Cf. nashquttin.

the growth of inanimate being, as does -etu that of animate: uetu, he grows; uekin, it grows; but from Eliot's use of these two forms it appears that nekin had the force of an an. passive, he is born, he is grown; uetu an. intrans., which we may nearly translate by 'he has birth', 'he grows.' See both forms in the same verse, John 3, 4]: wutch nekin-neát (infin.), from birth, Hos. 9, 11; nekin, (a tree) grows, is grown, Ezek. 17, 6; Dan. 4, 33; (of the hair), Judg. 16, 12; suppos. nekik, negik, when it grows or is grown, Dan. 4, 33 (nekuk, Matt. 13, 32); pl. an. -kig: nékeekig, Rom. 9, 11; pl. inan. -kish: nekukish, 2 K. 19, 29; (pass. form) nekit, when he is born, John 3, 5, 6; pl. neg nékitcheg, John 1, 13. nnih, (it) 'was so', Gen. 1, 7; 'it came to pass', Gen. 6, 1; 38, 1; Matt. 7, 28; 'is', Eccl. 3, 15; = nnne, q. v. [This second definition of nnih appears in the unrevised portion of the manuscript between the term nishk and P, and, although it repeats to some extent the references contained in the first (revised) definition, it is here inserted in full. The first definition of nnih occurs in the revised manuscript, where it follows the term nickómmo*.]

nnîn (Narr.), man; pl. nínnuog, R. W., who also writes enîn, man, and pl. nínnuock, a "general name belonging to all natives". Related to ne, neen (I), nanwe, and unne (of the kind or species), the radical meaning of nnîn or nínnu is, 'he is like myself', or 'of the same kind'. This word could properly have no place in Eliot's translation. It is, however, once or twice introduced, as in Mark 10, 6: ninnuoh (accusat.) kah squa, 'male and female', i. e. man and woman. The Indians restricted its application to men of their own race or like themselves. (See nanwe.)

omp, n. man. This word is nowhere found by itself, and perhaps was already obsolete when Eliot's acquaintance with the language was commenced; but its recurrence in compound words suffices to fix it as the dialectic name appropriated, in accordance with Indian usage, to the favored race, whose men were all viri, while those of other tribes or nations were contemptuously regarded as even less than homines—missinnuog, or captives. (See missin; missinnin.) From this root come, apparently, nompaas (ne-omp-ăăas, the man animal), a male; wosketomp (woskehuae-omp, hurtful or bloody man), a warrior, or 'brave', one who bears arms (see note below); mugquomp (mogke-omp, great man), a captain; nunkomp (nunkon-omp, light man?), a young man, not grown up; penomp (penowe-omp?, a stranger to man, nescia viri?), a virgin; omskaunónat (for omp-), to conquer, to put to flight; and, perhaps, ompehteâonk (omp-ohtâe, that which belongs to man or to the conqueror), tribute.

[Note.—Regarding wosketomp the compiler notes: "This is wrong, but I can not fix the true meaning of woskt-." This is followed by a note in pencil: "Perhaps NOT wrong. 1883."]

From pâme (pummeü). The primary form of this verb appears to be pomussu (see Muh. and Abn. equivalents below), the act. intrans. form (he continues doing), as pom-antam is the simple intrans. or neuter form (he continues feeling or thinking, he lives), and pomohhom (or pâm-wœm), the inact. intrans. (he continues going, passively or without action of his own, he sails or goes by boat). This primary form is energized in pomushau by the aspirate, as in the intens. ussishau for us- tohshinum. See tahshinum.

tohsú, tohshéu, adj. or, as Eliot classes it, a 'distributive pronoun', signifying how much: "pl. tohsuog, tohsunash, how many", El. Gr. 8. Elsewhere (p. 14) he gives "tohsú, or tahshe, which is varied [in the pl.] tohsúog, tohsúash, or tohshinash", as an 'additional' or 'word suppletive, which signifieth nothing' added to the numerals from 5 to 9 (inclusive), and 'which receiveth the grammatical variation of the things numbered, animate or inanimate': napanna tahshe, five; an. pl. napanna tohsuog; inan. pl. napanna tohsuash [or tahshinash]; yeu tohsheu, for so much?; nux, ne tohsheu, yes, for so much, Acts 5, 8; wunneese tahshe, twice as much, Job 42, 10; nequt pasukœe tahshee, a hundredfold (times so much), Luke 8, 8 (tohshe, so much; ne tohshit, so often, so many times, C.). Pl. an. tohsuog, how many (persons); inan. tohshinash, tahshinash, tohsúash, how many (things); ne adtahshe, ne ahhut tahshe, [that which is to or at so many] so many as, the sum of, 2 Sam. 2, 23; Mark 6, 56; 2 K. 4, 8; suppos. inan. ne adtahsik, the whole number, the sum, Rev. 13, 18 (ne audtahsinit, 'the sum of the number', 1 Chr. 21, 5); suppos. an. pl. ne adtahshehettit, they being (when they were) so many, as many of them as, Judg. 3, 1; 1 Tim. 6, 1. As a 'suppletive' to the numerals from 5 to 10, the signification of tahshe (tohsú) is obscure, though Eliot was certainly wrong in supposing it without significance. It may not improbably be related to tahshin, he lifts himself, raises up, and tahshinum, he holds up or raises (his hand or something in his hand). With an inan. subj. tahshin becomes tahsheu, it lifts, or is lifted up. The Algonquian system of numbers was quinary, and borrowed doubtless from the fingers of the hand. At five (napanna, nabo napanna, or sometimes napanna tahshe), one hand was put up (neepœ, neepau-un, stood upright); at six, 5+1, one finger of the second hand was raised, nequtta tahshe, and so on.

Soc. 1, 61. tukkœ itself is either a derivative form or nearly related to the primary verb togku, he strikes. [Narr. ntcatammowonck, 'that is my thought or opinion', R. W. 65.]

unnantamŭnát, anantamunát, v. t. to think, 2 Cor. 3, 5; to suppose, 2 Sam. 13, 33; to purpose, to will, to have in mind (to suppose or imagine, C. 211): nuttenantam, I think, Acts 7, 40; I suppose, Luke 7, 43; sun kuttenantam, thinkest thou? See anántam.

In form this verb is a frequentative or intensive from autamunát, or anatamunát (Narr. ntunántum or neántum, I think; tocketeántam and -tanántum, what do you think? R. W. 64). The latter is not found in Eliot's translation and perhaps was not in use, but it serves in forming a great number of verbs expressing states of the mind, mental operations, passions and emotions, etc. Among the more important of these are the following: ahquoantamunát (ahque, not to think of), to forgive; kodtantamunát (see kod), to desire; matchenantamunát (matchet, bad), to think evil of; mehquantamunát (mehquunn, he finds), to remember; missantamunát (missi, much, greatly), to think much, to meditate; monchanatamunát, to be astonished; musquantamunát (musqui, red or bloody), to be angry; muskoantamunát (muskóan, he boasts), to be boastful, to be very glad; natwontamunát, to devise, to meditate upon; neuantamunát, to grieve, to be sorry; onquotantamunát, to recompense, to avenge; pabahtantamunát (pabahtamm, he trusts), to trust; pakodtantamunát (paguodche, perhaps), to intend or have a mind to; peantamunát (pá, let me), to pray; poanatamunát, to be mirthful, to make sport; tabuttantamunát (taupi, tápi, sufficient, enough), to be thankful, to give thanks (to be satisfied or to have enough); waantamunát, to be wise; wannantamunát (wanne, negat.), to forget; weekontamunát (weekone, sweet, pleasant), to be pleased, to be glad; wuttamantamunát, to be troubled; wunnantamunát (wunne, good), to bless.

From the same root appear to be derived the names given by the Indians to their gods. "They do worship two gods, a good god and an evil god. The good god they call Tantum and their evil god, whom they fear will do them hurt, they call Squantum."—Higginson's N. E. Plantation. The latter name, applied to the same evil deity who was called Habbamock or Hobbamoco (Lechford's Pl. Dealing 52), appears to be the contracted 3d pers. sing. indicat. present of musquantamunát: m'squantam, 'he is angry', or literally, 'bloody-minded'. The composition of Tantum is less obvious.

[Note.—The last paragraph of this definition is marked "No" in the margin. It was probably the compiler's intention either to rewrite or to omit it.]

the form of a verb transitive and frequentative. The earlier form of the intransitive is not found in Eliot. As meechinat means primarily to eat vegetal food, the radical verb from which wuttattamunat is derived signified to drink water. This earlier form, without reduplication, may be traced in some of the phrases given by Roger Williams and Cotton: aquie-waúmatous (ahque wameattoush), do not drink all, R. W. 34; sun woh kœtam eyeu, will you smoke it now? [i. e. drink (?)], C. 241. There was another word, meaning to drink (intransitive), whose original form it is not easy to trace in its compounds. The radical appears to be sip, related perhaps to saupáe, sabáe (q. v.), suppequash (tears); possibly to sepe, sēp. kogkeissippamwáen, a drunkard (koghesip-, C.; kakesup-, Mass. The name, as applied to the constellation and the animal, was probably derived from pohkenai, signifying 'he goes when it is dark', or by night.

daughter, wut-taun-oh, his daughter, the daughter of; pl. wut-taun-og, the daughters of, his daughters; indef. wut-taun-in, the daughter of anyone, any daughter, a daughter (wuttonin, C.); nut-taunes (nittaûnnis, R. W.; nuttônees, C.), my daughter; collect. wuttaunéunk, all the daughters, all who are daughters, the daughterhood; wuttôneu, wuttauniyeu, he begets or has a daughter, she bears or has a daughter.

Mr Duponceau, in his Notes on Eliot's Grammar (pp. xiii, xiv), expressed his surprise, "after the positive statement of our author that substantives are not distinguished by cases (except [animates when governed by a verb transitive] as above mentioned), to find different terminations of the same word in various parts of his translation of the Bible, of which he makes no mention and gives no explanation in his Grammar." He instances wuttaunoh Zion, 'daughter of Zion', Lam. 2, 8; woi Jerusalemme wuttaunin, 'O daughter of Jerusalem!' woi penomp Zione wuttaunin, 'O virgin daughter of Zion!' Lam. 2, 13; wutâssuneutunk wuttanoh Zion, 'the wall of the daughter of Zion', Lam. 2,. 8; woi kenaau Jerusalemme wuttauneunk, 'O ye daughters of Jerusalem!' Cant. 2, 7; kah ompetak wuttôneu (misprinted for wuttôneu), 'and she bare a daughter', Gen. 30, 21. "The first of these terminations is correct", Mr Duponceau informs us, nuttanoh, kuttanoh, wuttanoh being "the proper nominatives of this word", but the others "can not be accounted for" otherwise than by the conjecture that Eliot "had recourse to different Indian dialects." A very moderate proficiency in the study of the language would have enabled Mr Duponceau to reconcile the seeming incongruity in a manner more creditable to Eliot as a translator and to his own critical sagacity. Thus, wuttaunoh, his or her daughter, or the daughter of (corresponding in form with the 3d pers. sing. of the transitional or suffix verb), is really the possessive or genitive-construct form, the termination -oh indicating its government by or dependence on the noun following. In Jerusalemme wuttaunin, lit. 'any Jerusalem daughter', the first word has the form of an adjective, and the termination -in (any) indicates the indefinite use of the word 'daughter'; wuttauneunk, in Jerusalemme wuttauneunk, is the collective, and signifies the Jerusalem daughterhood, all the daughters of Jerusalem; and in ompetak wuttôneu, 'afterwards she bare a daughter', wuttôneu, instead of being, as Mr Duponceau supposed, "in the accusative governed by an active verb", is itself the verb, ompetak representing the adverb 'afterwards'. See younger son or daughter.

daughter-in-law (son's wife), wushim-oh, his or her son's wife, the daughter-in-law of; kushim, thy daughter-in-law; indef. wushim-in, a daughter-in-law.

W.). Rarely used; see sun. kesakod (kêesakat, R. W.; kesâkod, C.), a day, the space of a day; suppos. kesukok, when it is day; a day past, future, or contingent: ne kesukok, on that day when, or while it was that day; yeu kesukok, (on or within) this day; negonne kesukod, the first day; kesukod kah nuhkon, day and night; pl. kesukodtash, days; adv. and adj. kesukodâeu, -dâe, by day, in the daytime (kesâkkâttae, C.; kêesqush, kêesuckquâi, by day, R. W.). After a numeral adjective or the adjectives 'few', 'many', or the like, 'days' was more commonly expressed by -quinnu or -quinne, a day (or when it was the day), or by the suppos. form

quinōgok or quinukok: pasuk kesuk, asuh neesuk kesukquâe . . . asuh piogkukquinne, 'one day or two days . . . or ten days', Num. 11, 19; nequtte kesuk asuh neesequinnu, 'a day or two', Ex. 21, 21; agguhse-quinne, few days; mœchetikquinne, for many days. The suppos. form is used after an ordinal, as nishikquinogok, on the third day (shuckqunóckat, 'three days', R. W.; nishikquinohquod, three days hence or ago, C.); yauquinogkok, on the fourth day (yowunnóckat, 'four days', R. W.). So, mache mœchetik-quinogok, 'after many days' (nesūkquinōgkod, two days ago, C.; mamusse quinne kesukod, all the day long, ibid., which last phrase points to the etymology, from quinne, long, the measure of duration).

"They are punctual in measuring their day by the sun, and their night by the moon and the stars", R. W. 67. Besides the more obvious mode of indicating time of day or night, by saying that the sun or moon was 'so high' (yá tâuut nipéean, 'the sun thus high, I will come', R. W.), the seasons of light and darkness were subdivided, under significant names, to a degree that admitted of considerable accuracy in expressing time. The principal of these subdivisions or hours were as follows: adchauwómpag, (when it is) morning watch, just before daylight [ahchu wompag, he looks earnestly for daylight]; ketompog, (when it is) daybreak [keht-wompag (?), the beginning of daylight] (kitompanisha, break of day, R. devil, mattanit, pl. mattannitoog, -œog [mat-anitto or matche-anitto, the negative or opposite of m'anitto, god, the not-god or evil god] (Muh. mtandou or manitto, devil. "The last of these words properly signifies a specter or anything frightful", Edwards, 2 Mass. H. C. x. 88. Del. machtando or matshimanitto, devil, evil spirit, Hkw.). It is probable that this word was formed by Eliot or by his Indian converts. The devil or evil spirit of Indian mythology was called Habamouk, Hobbamoco, Abbamocho, or Chĕpie (Smith's Descr. of N. E.; Josselyn; Lechford). "Abbamocho or Cheepie many times smites them with incurable diseases, scares them with his apparitions and panic terrors, by reason of which they live in a wretched consternation, worshipping the Devil for fear", Josselyn, 3 Mass. H. C. III, 300. "Another power they worship, whom they call Hobbamock, and to the northward of us, Hobbamoqui. This, as far as we can conceive, is the Devil", Winslow's Relation (1624). The etymology of this name is not apparent; but chepie (Peq. cheeby, chepy, Stiles), is a form of cheppe or chippe, separated, apart, that which is distinct or separated from us, that is, from the body or life. Heckewelder explains the Delaware "tschipey or tschitschank" (sometimes wrongly used for "the soul or spirit of man") as signifying a specter, spirit, or ghost, and having "something terrifying about it." "They call the place or world they are to go to after death Tschi-pey-ach-gink or Tschipeyhacking, the world of spirits, specters, or ghosts, where they imagine are various frightful figures", Hkw., 2 Mass. H. C. x, 147. Eliot has chepi-ohke and chepioh-kŏmuk for hades, hell (the place of separation or the land of spirits). So, chèpeck, 'the dead', R. W. [chippeog, they are separated or apart]; tsee-e-p, 'ghost, dead man', Nanticoke Voc. in 2 Mass. H. C. x, 139. Squantum, another name for the evil spirit (Josselyn; Higginson), is clearly a contraction of musquantam, 'he is angry'. Roger Williams says (109), "if it be but an ordinary accident, a fall, etc., they will say, 'God was angry and did it; musquantam manit, God is angry.'" See spirit; God.

The compounds of this verb are innumerable, for it is not only combined with such words as express the quality of action, as wunnesu [wunne-ussu], he does well; matchesu [matche-ussu], he does ill, etc., but it serves to express potential activity, as well as action performed; that is, the idea of activity inseparable from that of an animate being. Thus, with an animate subject it was sometimes used as a verb of existence, and in composition it denotes an animate subject (as ohteau does an inanimate subject) of the compound verb.

dog, anŭm (aa zăm, C.), pl. +wog. Eliot, in noticing the changes which some of the consonants undergo in passing from one dialect to another,

instances this word, as Roger Williams had before done, as pronounced by the Indians of Massachusetts, anùm, with "nm produced"; by the Nipmucks, alùm; by the Northern (and the Quinnipiac) Indians, arùm, and, as Roger Williams states, by the Narragansetts, ayim (El. Gr. 2; R. W., Key, 96). Stiles gives ayimp, aujimp (Narr.), and n'ahteah (Peq.). "The Delawares say allum, the Algonkins alim, the Etchemins or Abenakis allomoos [allum-ôaas]", Barton's Compar. Voc. From a root signifying to take hold of or to hold fast, to hold on to. The animate form occurs not rarely in Eliot's translation; as, noh anum-woh annuont wehtauog-ut, 'one that taketh [suppos.] a dog by the ears', Prov. 26, 17; nut-annun œ-weeshittœn-it, I caught him by his beard, 1 Sam. 17, 35.

W.; ahque amaish, don't depart, C.); ahquch, 'have patience with me' (Matt. 18, 26), where it is used as a verb in the an. suffix form. Eliot calls it an 'adverb of forbidding', 'beware, do not' (Gr. 21). He uses it as a verb in the indicative in Gen. 17, 22; Ruth 2, 20, for 'he desists, leaves off'. When compounded with the verb to form the imperative negative it has the form -âhkon, -uhkon, or -'kon, as kunnaduhkon, thou shalt not steal (steal not); ahchewanumâhkon, thou shalt not covet; nusheteohkon, thou shalt not kill, etc. The vowel sound variously written âh, -uh, -oh, -eh was probably nearly like the German ö.

AS. sipan, Engl. sup, sip, soup, etc.), thus, tâpsuppamwehhittit (Mass. Ps.), tâpsippámhettit (El.), 'when they have well drunk', John 2, 10 [tâpi-sippam-hettit, when they have drunk enough]; kogkeissippøuen, a drunkard [kogkeae-sippam, he drinks madly or to madness]; ohksippamwèan [=ahque-sippamweau], 'if you leave off drinking', C.; wussaumsippaminneat [=wussaume-sippaminneat, to drink too much], to be drunk, ibid.; wussomsippamõe, drunken, ibid.; ahque kogkesupamwish, don't be drunk, ibid.

dry, nunabpeu, nunobpe, nanabpi [for nunappu], it is dry (nnâppi, dry; nnappaquat, dry weather, R. W.; nunnâpi, dry, C.), i. e. permanently dry, as the 'dry land' (Gen. 1, 9, 10), as distinguished from the water or marshy land, -appu in composition signifying to be and remain. Otherwise, nunnobiyeu: ayim ketoh nunnobiyeùut, 'he made the sea dry land', Ex. 14, 21. nunohtáe, dry, that which has become dry [nun-ohteau, it becomes dry, dries up]: nunohtáe meldug, a dry tree. nunnobohke [nunappu-ohke], the earth, dry land. nunobohteáe, nabohteai [nunappu-ohteau], dry ground, earth which becomes dry (comparatively); nunnobohteáóunt, nabohteaóùut, on dry ground; wutch nunobohteaóuut, 'from the dust of the earth', Gen. 2, 7. The radical, nùn-, is not found except in composition. kunkohteádteáe, dry, implied a lack or deficiency of moisture: kunkohteádteáe ohke, dry land, i. e. parched by drought. From kunkan, kóhnkan, there is dryness or drought. The same word, compounded with 'tœm, mouth, kohkuttœm, kuhkuttœm, signifies thirsty, lit. 'he is dry-mouthed'. mussœ, (it is) dry, said only of a tree or plant, grain, fruit, etc., and then only in compound words: mussœunk, a dry tree; pl. mussohquaminneash (mussunkq-, missunkq-), dry ears of corn [perhaps, as originally applied to a tree, from mœsi, bare, stripped of its leaves]. See drought.

duck, quequécum, pl. +náuog, R. W.; Narr. quĕqueeckum, Stiles; sĕsĕp, quĕssups, C.; Peq. quaqueeckum, quauquaumps, black duck; pawquumps, 'flat bills'; a'kotoshah, 'dipper' (Fuligula albeola, Bonap., spirit-duck); a'pishaug, 'widgeons'; m'shizzeege, 'shelldrake'; a'kobýeeze, 'brants'; ungowáums, 'old wives' (Anas glacialis, Fuligula glacialis, Bonap.), Stiles; menuks, pl. +og, brant, C.
The names quequécum ('he quack-quacks') and ungowáum (whose call Nuttall endeavors to express by "the guttural syllables 'ogh ough egh") are clearly onomatopoetic. The others I have not analyzed.

dugs, sogkodtungash (pl.), teats, dugs; in the singular, sogkodtunk, milk. From soh-kodtinnum, he draws forth from; sohkodtunk (suppos. part. inan. concrete), that which is drawn forth from.

sagk (pissugk, C.), dirt; pissagquave, miry; pissogqsheau, it sticketh, cleaveth to, is sticky; pussoqua, rotten, decayed].

dwarf, noh chenesit, Lev. 21, 20.

dwell, ayeu, he is here or there, he is in this or that place, denoting location, temporary or permanent, though in the latter sense appu (he remains) was more commonly used: noh ayeu kah appu, 'she dwelleth and abideth', Job 39, 28. Cotton gives aiinneat (infinit.) as the translation of 'to be', and Eliot often employs this verb as a substitute for the verb of existence; but it can not properly be used to express existence independent of place. The radical is yeu, this (an. yeuoh, this person), or, as an adverb, here, itself originally an imperfect verb, which may be termed a verb demonstrative. nuttai, nuttaih, (I am in this or that place), I dwell (in or at); pish kuttai, thou shalt dwell; nuttai-up otanat Joppa, 'I was in the city of Joppa', Acts 11, 5; ne aiyit, ne ayit, where he might dwell or be; noh ayit, he who dwelleth, Is. 8, 8; 57, 15; na ayish, there dwell thou; ayitcheg (pl.), the dwellers there, the inhabitants (yo ntîin, I live here; tou wuttîin? where keep you? tuckuttîin [toh kuttai-in]? where lives he? R. W.; Moh. oiect, he 'who lives or dwells in a place', Edw.). wutohkeu, wadohkeu, he dwells in or inhabits (a place or country); yeu nutohkin, here I dwell, i. e. am of the land or country; wutohkish en ohkit, dwell thou in the land; suppos. part. noh wadohkit, he who dwells or is an inhabitant; pl. neg wadohkitcheg, the dwellers or inhabitants; uttiyeu kutohk? what is thy country? Jonah 1, 8 [wut-ohke-u, he is of the land or place]. weetomau, he dwells with (him); suffix awwetomouh, they dwelt with them; nawwetom, I dwell with [from wetu, house: weetomau, he is of the house of].

dwelling place, ayeuonk [vbl. n. act. from ayeu], a dwelling in this place. See house.

eagle, wompsikuk, womsikuk, wompussikŏk (wómpissacuk, pl. +quâuog, R. W.; wompsukook, C.) [wompi-psuk, white great bird]. The name is more appropriately given to the fishhawk or osprey (Pandion haliætus) than to the bald eagle (Haliætus leucocephalus), but was possibly applied to both birds by the Indians of the coast.

ear, mĕhtâuog, pl. +quash; nehtauog, my ear; kehtauog, thy ear; wehtauog, his ear (wuttówog, pl. +quash, R. W.; Peq. kuttuwannege, (your) 'ear, or what you hear by', Stiles.) From wahteau, he knows, understands, perceives (wâteo, C.); suppos. particip. wahteuuk, knowing, with termination marking inan. agent, and m' indefinite prefixed. Cf. Gr. ἀΐειν (ἀΐω), to feel, to perceive, to hear; Lat. audire; Fr. entendre, to hear, to understand.

earn, tummuhhowun onkquatunk, he earns (and obtains) wages; suppos. noh tamhowadt, he who earns (it).

earth, ohke (aûke, R. W.; ohké, C.), the earth, land, place, country (Abn. ki, 'terre', Rasles; Gr. γη; Lat. terra). The primary meaning appears to be 'that which produces or brings forth', corresponding to the an. ohkus [=ohkeôâas], the bringer forth, the mother. nunabpi, nunohpe, earth, dry land (as distinguished from water). See dry.

earthquake, quequan (there is a shaking or trembling), a shaking; pl. quequanash: ohke mukkeemo kah quequan, 'the earth shook and trembled', Ps. 18, 7.

east, wutchepwôiyeu, wutchepwoayeu, eastward, on or to the east; wutche wutchepwoiyeu, from the east; wutchepwosh (wutchepwoshe wittin, C.), the east wind. For wutchepwôiyeu the Massachusetts Psalter substitutes wompanniyeu, and Roger Williams has Wompanand, 'the Eastern God' (i. e. god of the dawn or morning light), but nopâtin, the east wind, and chepewéssin (=wut-chepwosh of Eliot), the northeast wind (p. 83) [wut-chepioh-yeu, belonging to Chepy, or the bad spirit, to whom the northeast region appears to have been appropriated, as the west or northwest was to Chekesuwand or Kesukquand and the southwest to Kautántowit or the good god]. wompanniyeu (where the daylight is) appears to have been the more generally received word for 'east' or 'to the east'. Its radical, wompan, wópi (white, light, bright, of the dawn), enters into the composition of the names of places and people, as Abenaki (Wapanachki) and Wampanoags (Wampan-ohke). See north.

easy, nikkúmme (nickŭmmat, R. W.; nikkumme, nukkŭmme, nukkŭmat, C.), it is easy, not difficult or hard; suppos. nickŭmmat, when it is easy.

eat, meetsu, he eats (v. i.), he takes food; infin. mĕtsinate, meetsinneate (metesinnin, R. W.; Del., mitzin Hkw.), to eat; meetsish, eat thou; meetsuog, they eat (ascúmetesinnis [=asq kum-meetsinas], 'have you not yet eaten?' R. W.; Del. k'dapi mitzi, have you eaten? Hkw.; n'mitzi, I eat, ibid.; n'dappi mitzi, I am returned from eating, ibid.; Muh. meetsoo, he eateth, Edw.); vbl. n. act. meetsuonk, eating, taking food [meech-ussu]; v. t. meech, he eats (inanimate food); num-meech, I eat (Del. n'mitzi, Hkw.; num-mechin, C.): woh kummeech weyaus, thou mayest eat flesh, Deut. 12, 20 (keen méitch, 'I pray, eat', i. e. eat thou, R. W.). mowhau, mohwhou, he eats (him, or animate object): puppinashim um-mohwho-uh, the beast devoured him, Gen. 37, 20; qunnonu matta mowhóou, the lion had not eaten (him), 1 K. 13, 28 (cum-môhucquock, they will eat you; Mohowaugsuck or Mauquâuog, from môho, to eat, 'the cannibals or men-eaters up in the west [i. e. Mohawks]', R. W.). Heckewelder says, "mitzin signifies to eat, and so does nohoun", the latter being used, in the language of the Delawares, when what is eaten "required the use of the teeth", and guntammen when that which was eaten "needed no chewing, as pottage, mush, or the like." "If he has eaten of both kinds of provisions at his meal he will then use the generic term [intransitive verb?] and say n'dappi mitzi, I have eaten" (correspondence with Duponceau). The distinction between the verbs may be more correctly expressed, at least so far as the language of Massachusetts is concerned, by stating that the intransitive verb 'he eats' is expressed by metzu, the transitive inanimate by meech, he eats vegetable food (whence weatchimimmeash, eachimmimmeash [=m'eechum-mimmeash, eatable grain], corn, and meechummonk, fruit, vegetable food), and the transitive animate by mœwhau, he eats that which has life, or an animate object; perhaps, primarily, he bites or tears with the teeth: mœhœwomœ [mœwhaumœ] ogque askœk-ut, 'it biteth like a serpent', Prov. 23, 32; suppos. noh mœhhukque, 'he who eateth me', John 6, 57; ohquaog ummœhchouh, the worms ate him, 'he was eaten of worms', Acts 12, 23; mœwhau locusts, 'he did eat locusts', Mark 1, 6; but num-meech weyaus, I eat meat, flesh (as Deut. 12, 20), etc. These three verbs—metzu, meech, mœwhau—denote the act of eating or taking food. There was another and older verb, not found in Eliot except in compound words, which signified to feed or to satisfy the appetite, namely ăppœ or upwou, (cf. Sansk. pâ, 'nourrir, soutenir', 'sustentare', Bopp.; Gr. πάω; Lat. pâ, in pâ-ri, pâ-bulum.) Its compounds and derivatives are numerous, as, natuppœ, nadtuppœ, it (an animal other than man) feeds or grazes: pigs-og natuppuog, the swine feed or were feeding, Luke 8, 32; neetassuog pish nadtuppœog (natúpwock, R. W.), the cattle shall feed, Is. 30, 23; v. t. inan. nadtuppœwontam, he feeds upon; kodtuppœ [kod-ăppœ, he desires to feed], he is hungry; wamepœ [wamĕppœ, he feeds wholly or entirely], he is satisfied or fills himself; tâpuppœ [tâpi-uppœ, he feeds sufficiently], he eels, neeshaúog, sassammaúquock, nquittéconnaúog, R. W.; Peq. neesh, neeshnaugr, Stiles; Narr. neshuongok, eels, Stiles; nequttika, an eel, C. Two of these names, nquittéconnaúog and neeshaúog, are evidently compounded with the numerals nequtta, one, and neese, two, as descriptive of two varieties or species of the eel. The former signifies he is alone, one by himself (nukqutteghen, 'only son', as in Luke 7, 12; 9, 38; Gen. 22, 2), and the latter, neeshauog, they couple, go in pairs (neesnog, 'two of a sort', a pair, Gen. 6, 19, 20). The origin of these names may be found, perhaps, in the popular belief that the common eel was hermaphrodite, or rather, epicene. See Smith's Nat. Hist. of Fishes of Mass., 236. The name "neshaw eel" is still retained by the fishermen of Marthas Vineyard, at Holmes Hole, and perhaps elsewhere, for the silver eel (Muræna argentea of Le Sueur) (Storer's Report on Fishes of Mass.).

Edwards, in his Observations on the Language of the Muhhekaneew Indians (page 13), remarks that "a considerable part of the appellatives are never used without a pronoun affixed. The Mohegans can say 'my father' (nogh), 'thy father' (kogh), etc., but they can not say absolutely 'father'; there is no such word in all their language. If you were to say ogh, which the word would be if stripped of all affixes, you would make a Mohegan both stare and smile." Mr Heckewelder, "notwithstanding Mr Edwards's observation", "could not help being of opinion that the monosyllable ooch is the proper word for 'father', abstractedly [?] considered" (correspondence with Duponceau, page 411). Rev Mr Daggett assured Mr Pickering that "there is no word in any of the Indian languages used in the Foreign Missionary School [at Cornwall, Conn.] by which to express in the abstract the relation of 'father' and most of the other social relations" (2 Mass. Hist. Coll., x, 112). More recent writers adopt the statement of Edwards—as Bancroft (III, 257), who cites Brebeuf (81)—and Palfrey (Hist. New Engl., I, 42): "The most common relations they had no means of expressing abstractedly." This is, in one aspect, correct, for the Indian languages did not admit of the expression of a correlative name abstracted from its relation, nor does the English. But they could approximate as nearly to the expression as does the English word 'father' by wutœshimau (Eliot; wetœchwink, Hkw.), 'he is a father', lit. he is proceeded from, is a source. It is surprising—and the fact shows how superficial has been the study of the group of languages about which so much has been written—that the radical significance of the word by which the Indian expressed relation to a father has escaped observation. nœsh, kœsh, œsh-oh represent the 1st, 2d, and 3d persons singular (indic. pres.) of a suffix animate verb, and signify 'I proceed or originate from (him)', 'thou originatest from (him)', 'he originates from (him)'; intrans. my (an.) origin or source, thy origin or source, etc. Thus the Indian reversed the expression of relationship which we employ in the word 'father': instead of 'he is my father', they said 'I am his offspring' (cf. wutch negonne nœshik, 'from my forefathers', from where first I came from (suppos.), 2 Tim. 1, 3). The inanimate form of the same verb is often to be met with in Eliot, as œtshoh, wutjishau, wutchu, he proceeds or originates from or at (a place or inanimate source), and in Roger Williams's Key, as óteshem

and wutshau (acâwmuck nóteshem, 'I came [from] over the water'; tanna wutshatiock? whence come they?). The animate form is frequently employed in its primary signification—that is, without including the idea of paternity, or rather of the filial relation, as nœchai wohkumaieu, 'I am from above'; kenaau kœchaiimwœ wutch agwu, 'ye are from below', John 8, 23; noh wutchu . . . nish wame, 'of him [as original or source] are all things', Rom. 11, 36; noh wajhet mittamwossissit, 'he who is [suppos.] born of a woman', Gal. 4, 4; causat. suppos. noh wajchayeuut Godut, 'he who is of God', i. e. is caused to proceed from or to have his origin in, John 6, 46; and in this form it is hardly separable from the so-called preposition, which is in fact the primitive impersonal verb, wutche, wutch, atch (wuché, R. W.), from, because of, etc. See begin; come or proceed from; from.

W.); kuttôn toh kod ôan, 'thou walkedst whither thou wouldst [go to]', John 21, 18; aûm, if I go. The forms of this verb are more irregular than of perhaps any other of the primitive verbs. It is not always possible to distinguish its suppositive and participial forms from those of œm under the disguises of Eliot's phonography. This verb is often used intransitively, and its primary signification was, probably, to go: noadtit aui, 'he is gone a long journey' (afar off), Prov. 7, 19; uttoh wamœuk, uttoh aomœuk, 'whence it cometh, whither it goeth', Mass. Ps., John 3, 8; ne ayŏau, 'in the way' (when thou goest), Ex. 23, 20; suppos. uttoh woh áái or ayói, whither I may go. Hence m'ay, a path: may toh-

"We say God is; the Indian of this is Mannitœo. The two first syllables stand for God; the latter assert his existence", Exp. Mayhew (MS). In his translation of the Bible Eliot has in most instances transferred the name of "God" and of "Jehovah" to the Indian text. He gives, however, Manit wame masugkenuk, 'God Almighty', Ex. 6, 3, and nen Manitto, 'I am God' Is. 43, 12, etc.; cf. Manit, 'the Lord', Ps. 2, 4; Jehovah, 'the Lord', v. 7; God-ut, '(against) the Lord', v. 2. The possessive form num-manitœm, my god, Ps. 3, 7; 7, 1; kum-manitœm, thy god, etc., is sometimes used. "They worship Kitan, their good god, or Hobbamoco, their evil god", Lechford, Plaine Dealing. Tántum was a contracted form of keihtanit-æm, my great god or our great god. "Kichtan . . . the principal and maker of all the rest [of the gods] and to be made by none . . . who dwelleth above in the heavens . . . far westward, whither all good men go when they die", Winslow's Relation, 1624; and in the margin: "The meaning of the word kichtan, I think, hath reference to antiquity, for chize [kutchise?] is an old man and kichchise a man that exceedeth in age". (Del. Getaunitowit, God, Hkw.) Squantam (=Kichtan and Kautantowit?): "They acknowledge a god whom they call Squantam, but worship him they do not" (Josselyn, 3 M. C. H., III, 300). himself, wuhhog; see he. wuttin, wuttinne, he himself, ille ipse. Though Eliot mentions tin, tinne as 'suppletive syllables of no significance, but for ornament of the word' (Gr. 23), it is evident enough that they were employed to give emphasis to the pronoun when separated from the verb. From ewò, the pronoun of the third pers. sing., was formed the verb wattinnaiinueat [wut-unncainueat], to be like or such as [unne] himself; see kind (n.). nchewonche, of himself, sua sponte.

hog, ockqutchaun, pl. +ung, R. W., 'a wild beast of a reddish hair, about the bigness of a pig and rooting like a pig, from whence they give this name to all our swine'. The animal named by R. W. is the groundhog or woodchuck (Arctomys monax). Mr Judd, in Gen. Register, xi, 219, identifies the 'woodshaw', 'woodschock',' and 'wejack' of the early fur traders with the 'fisher' or 'wallaneag' (Mustela canadensis). See fisher. I suspect that 'woodchuck' is corrupted from the aboriginal name, and that the dictionary reference, 'See chuck', as a guide to the etymology, is wrong.

hoist, ushpunnum, ashpunnum, he hoists or lifts (it) up: ushpunnumwog sepâghonk, they hoist the sail. wunaûpunish, hoist up (the sail), R. W. See hold.

Cotton gives oskón, a hide; weween, a horn. The latter is evidently from wuéenu, it winds around, is curved. See bone.

hornet, aohkéaumœs, Josh. 24, 12; but bee, Ps. 118, 12. See bees.

horse, nahnaiyeumŏoadt, a horse, a creature that carries, C. The root in all these words is ohkus (ŏkus), as in m'kussa, a burning coal, from which, too, in the suppos. an. form, may perhaps be derived kesuk, the sun; see sun. Cf. Gr. καίω; καύσω; καῦσις; αἴθω, to burn; αἰθήρ, the empyreal region, the sky; ἕλη, εἴλη, heat of the sun; ἥλιος.

From this last comes weekinneau, he lives in or occupies a house; weekitteau, he builds a house; an. wekuhkau, he builds (is building or constructing) a house for (any person or an. obj.); vbl. n. weekitteaonk, a building. mind") which Eliot regards as "a sort of verb substantives" formed from "adnouns of virtue and vice," etc. (Gr., p. 16), and of which he gives, as an example, a paradigm of the verb wäantam, he is wise, regularly conjugated by affixing the verbal particles to the "adnoun" waantam; but waantam is primarily a verb and not an adnoun or adjective. I have called unaantam or anantam the primary, but strictly speaking it is a derivative by reduplication from a more simple form, antam, which expresses mental and emotional activity, as ussu expresses physical activity, and is correspondingly employed in composition (see unnantamănăt). kesontam, he purposes, intends, forms a resolution or resolves. pakodtantam, he determines, intends.

An analysis of this verb furnishes the key to Eliot's translation of Ex. 3, 14, which proved so inexplicable a puzzle to Mr Pickering and Mr Duponceau, and which Heckewelder concluded, after long research, must, "if it means anything, be either 'I am a man, I am a man' or 'I do so, I do so'," and which his correspondent, Dencke, thought might be a new verb formed by Eliot, but "not genuine Indian" (Notes on Eliot's Grammar, 2 M. H. C. 9, xxiv–xliv). Mr Pickering, at the point where his investigations promised success, was misled by Cotton's vocabulary, where the verb unniinat is given with the translation 'to become' and "nuttinni, I am become". This translation was perhaps suggested to Cotton by some such use of the verb as in John 1, 12: annaumoniinneat God [wunnaumon-unnainneat], 'to become the sons of God', to be of or such as sons of God. Eliot himself contributed to the misunderstanding by stating that tit, tin, tinne were syllables of "no signification, but for ornament," and only "in way of an elegancy" received the affix of the verb, "as nuttinne, kuttinne, wuttinne." The manner in which these augments are employed in Eliot's translation makes it clear that, while the t may be interposed for euphony merely, the additional syllables are always significant, though not always translatable to English, and that the compound pronouns are equivalent to nut-unni, kut-unni, wut-unni, marking the contrast or relation of 'such as' I, thou, or he to or with those of another kind or class. This significance attaches to the verbal forms: nut-tinniin, I am of the kind of, I am such as; ne nuttinniin (ne nuttunniin, Mass. Ps.), I am such as that, I am of that kind or class, 'so I am', John 13, 13; yeu nuttinniin (yeu nuttinnaiin, 'thus I have been', Gen. 31, 41), thus I am; neu nuttinniin neu nuttinniin, I am such as I myself am such as, I am of my own kind, 'I am that [which] I am', Ex. 3, 14. So with the pronouns of the 2d and 3d persons: neâne unnantog . . . ne wuttinniin, 'as he thinketh . . . so is he', Prov. 23, 7; wuttinnin howau, whosoever, i. e. of what kind soever, he be, Matt. 16, 24, 25; ne pish wuttinniin, 'so will be his manner', 1 Sam. 27, 11; neanüt wuttinneumin, ne wuttinniin wussontimoman, 'as with the servant so with his master', Is. 24, 2. neanussit (neahhenissit, 'such a one', C.), 'after its kind', suppos. from neanussu [ne-unni-ussu], the an. form of neane; suppos. neaunak, of the an.

The form of this verb in -antam, denoting mental activity, with the prefixed particle of indefinite motion or activity, pă, seems to mark as its primary signification the power of mental action, or, rather, the continued exercise of that power; cogitat, ergo est. male, nompaas, male, a male (of the human species). nomposhim, a male animal (other than man); adj. nomposhimwe. enewáshim, a male animal, R. W. "The males of quadrupeds are called lenno wéchum, by contraction lennochum; the females, ochque wéchum, by contraction ochquéchum. With the winged tribe . . . lenno wchelle for the males, and ochquechelle (with a little contraction) for the female", Hkw., of the Delaware, Corresp. 368, 369. ninnu (he is a man), male: nkkezheuh naho nínnuoh kah squa, 'he created them male and female', Mark 10, 6 (but of animals pish nompaiyeuæ kah squaiyeuæ, they shall be male and female, Gen. 6, 19). man, ninnu, (he is) a man; pl. ninnuog, men, homines (nuin, núnnuog, man, men, R. W.; Muh. pausuck cuin, or eneskétomp, one man; nemannauw, (he is) a man, Edw.; Narr. yĕuh, Stiles, i. e. yeuoh, this one; Del. lenno, Hkw. "Lenno in the Delaware language signifies man, and so does lenape in a more extended [restricted?] sense. In the name of the Lenni Lenape it signifies people; but the word lenni which precedes it has a different signification, and means original (?) and sometimes common, plain, pure, unmixed", Hkw., Corresp. 412. This lenni is the same word written nauve by Eliot and Cotton, of the same derivation as ninnu, but with the form of the adjective [nínnu-ae, n'nu-ae], and signifies any, common, normal. See general). This word ninnu is merely the emphasized demonstrative of the third, and through it of the first, person, noh, neen, n'un, or en'n, and with the verbal form, en'n-u, he is such as this one or as I. It was employed only when speaking of men of the same race, tribe, or nation as the speaker, or those nearly allied to it. "General [names] belonging to all Natives, as Ninnuock, Ninnimissinúwock, Eniskeetompaúwog, which signifies Men, Folk, or People," R. W., Introduction. See he; kind (n.); like; this; missin, below.

wosketomp (vir, a brave), a man; pl. +aog (skeétomp, pl. +auog, man, men; eniskeetompaúwog, people, R. W.; Eliot has wosketompaog kah nanânuacheg, 'both high and low', Ps. 49, 2; wsketomp, wosk, man; nauwi woske, any man; onkatog woske, another man, C.). This, the tribe name of man, appears to be compounded of woskeheau, woskehteau, he does harm, hurts, destroys, spoils (see hurt) and omp, man. The latter word was perhaps obsolete when Eliot acquired a knowledge of the language, but it was retained in many compound words, as will be noticed below. wosket- may be nothing more than the suppositive form of wuske, young, as in wuskenin (wúskenin, C.; wuskéne, R. W.), a young man, a youth; but this would restrict the application of wosketomp to young braves, when, as is evident, it was understood to have a more extended use by Eliot and Williams. The first-mentioned etymology gives a significance to the tribe name corresponding to that of the Pequots (Paguatoog, the destroyers) and Mohawks (Mŏwhauog, the devourers).

The recurrence of the word omp in compounds, though it nowhere appears standing by itself, shows it to have been the ancient dialectic or tribe name of man, appropriated, in accordance with Indian usage, to the favored race, whose men were all viri, freemen, and masters, while those of other tribes were contemptuously regarded as homines, barbari, captives and slaves. See missin, below. From this root come, apparently, nompaas [n'omp-óáas, the man animal], male; nĕtomp [neetu-omp], my friend, brother (Abn. nidaïbé, Rasles); mugwomp

[mogke-omp, great man], a captain; nunkomp [nunkon-omp, light man], a young man, not yet a warrior; penomp [penœ-omp, strange to man, nescius viri ?], a virgin; ompategash [omp-ohtagish, belonging or appropriate to man], weapons, used in the Mass. Psalter, John 18, 3, where Eliot has auwahteaongash; ahtomp [adt-omp, ahhut-omp, belonging to man], a bow; ompehteâonk, ompetcâonk [vbl. n. from ompohteau, it belongs to man], 'an old Indian word', says Cotton, 'that signifies obedience by giving any [tribute]'; tribute or royalty, exacted by and paid to a superior (see tribute). The primary signification of the word omp is, perhaps, a freeman, independent, owing no fealty; it is allied to ompeu, he is free, unbound, loose (see loose), ompenum, he looses, unbinds; but these last may be derivatives from the common root. Heckewelder states that in the Delaware the names of animals "walking in an erect posture" terminate regularly in ap or ape, "hence lenape, man" (Corresp. 411). A considerable class of words used by Eliot to express manner of standing and change of posture have apparently a similar origin, being compounds of a verb ompau, he stands; as sampœkompau, he stood upright; quenikompau, he stands upon (it); ohpikkompau [= ompik-ompau?], it stands upon, etc. (see stand). It may be that to stand erect is the primary and to be free a secondary signification of the same verb, ompau or ompeu. Cf. Del. nihillapewi, 'I am free,' 'my own master,' Zeisb.; Abn. arenaŭbé (pl. + ak), homo; séénaŭbé (pl. + ak), vir, Rasles; kigaŭbé, 'jeune homme non marié,' ibid.; "les petits animaux dî'r. [dicitur] naïapékiks, skšékiks, du mâle et femelle", ibid.; Alg. nape, male; alisinape, man, Lahontan, II, 294; napema, a married man,' ibid.
